Biography

With nearly three decades of coaching experience, Travis Robinson brings both passion and perspective to the linebacker room at national powerhouse St. John Bosco. A standout player at Brea Olinda High School—where he earned First Team All-League, First Team All-County, and MVP honors—Coach Robinson has spent his life committed to the game and the growth of young men. Now in his fourth season at Bosco, he played an integral role in the program's 2022 National Championship run and continues to prepare his players for success on and off the field. In addition to coaching, he's a successful business owner, husband, and father of two. Whether it's football, fishing, or family—Coach Robinson brings the same relentless work ethic and heart to everything he does.

Statement

Coaching is about more than football—it's about building men. With 28 years of experience, I strive to prepare my players for success on and off the field. At St. John Bosco, I'm proud to contribute to a championship culture alongside lifelong friends and passionate mentors. My goal is to help young athletes maximize their potential—through discipline, accountability, and love for the game.
